

PPA President's Report

George and I spent a very pleasant month in Ireland and Scotland with a brief foray into England. It was wonderful to catch up with family and friends, but it's great to be back in Pappinbarra. One of the things that really struck me overseas was the flocks of birds - vast numbers of crows and their allies, and seagulls of various species. Smaller birds were few and far between. The sorry fact is that these thriving bird populations are scavengers who survive on the waste discarded by humans. I leave you to conjecture about the fate of the seed- and insect-eating birds. We are fortunate in having a much less polluted environment and diverse ecosystems. I'm sure all that has and commitment to the same or other gods. an impact on our health and happiness.

Thanks to the committee for their able management during my absence and to Julie-Anne for organising the successful Home Brew night. Another grant application was lodged and Christmas and look forward to seeing you in the coming plans are advanced for building the fence in front of the hall year. in January.

While in Ireland we were taken to see ancient ruins in Donegal. A Neolithic stone circle (circa 300BC) was sitting in a green field surrounded by grazing sheep and a Celtic cross dating from Medieval times graced the roadside. A roofless church of rough fieldstone bore witness to the faith of those who lived there 800 years ago. The Celtic footprint in Australia (and the English one too) is relatively recent, so any comparison seems a little foolish. Nevertheless, we do have religious heritage in this valley - a little fibro and timber church built by pioneers 81 years ago as a sign of their commitment to the place and their god still survives, just as surely as the Irish ruins are surviving signs of past worship

Christmas is approaching and we also have a heritage of seasonal rituals, both secular and religious. On behalf of the committee I wish you all an enjoyable and relaxing

There will be the usual tug-of-war, donut eating competition and Christmas hamper raffle. Please bring along a non-perishable item for the raffle.

Meet the Neighbours—Lyn Blythe

Lyn protests: "I'm not a talker - I'm a good listener". I assure him that as one who has lived all his life in the Pappinbarra Valley he has something to say that we will all find interesting. He grew up in the house on the town side of the Pappinbarra Bridge where Chris Ylias now lives. His father was a dairy farmer and his mother was a Heron's Creek girl. On 13 January 1968, the old bridge across the Pappinbarra River was washed away. Lyn was on the spot. "The river came up and up and a helluva lot of rubbish was collecting the full width of the bridge. It let go on this end and just gradually swung around." That timber bridge was replaced with the present cement one.

When Ellengrove School was still operating, "we used to have functions there. They'd unscrew the desks and put them out on the verandah. I with his five little kids hanging off him, grabbed his guitar and plenty for Beechwood!" sang a song. We were all amazed! It's nothing now - people get Involved with PPA "for a long time", Lyn quietly mows the grass up and away they go - but he was the very first to do that in the at the hall and waters the trees. He's pleased that we have school room."

block and house for $42,000 and people said I was silly to pay that much." Then the locals built the hall onto the school room.

Lyn and Cindy milked for 20 years in the now defunct brick dairy opposite the brick house on the road next door to Clover Hills where Mick Carle is. "All that was Jim Ylias's. We never made any money. It was just a lot of hard work." When asked if he missed it after retiring in 1992, Lyn said "of course I did. I missed the cows, particularly in the evenings".

At the recent Home Brew night, Lyn carried off prizes for his lager and draught and judged the other categories. He well remembers the days when even beer was scarce. When asked if he brewed back then: "Oh hell no - but some people did. Until the brewery opened up at Grafton you could hardly buy one

PPA Calendar

We are hoping to have Pappinbarra calendars – featuring photographs submitted by our readers - for sale at December First Friday (providing all goes well) and available to order by phoning Jean Hegarty on 6587-6077 (price to be determined). Thanks to all who submitted photographs. Our newly returned President is racing against the clock to get this finalised – if it's not ready for this year it certainly will be for next!

Bec & Dave Mann performance at the Hall

There was a great turnout at the Hall to experience the travelling folkblues duo Bec and Dave Mann. The audience was filled and lubricated thanks to some excellent catering by Kelly and Jim (on his birthday!) and pre-warmed by a musical fivesome billed as local band The Scarlet Runners. If that really was a local outfit, it was further demonstration of the depth of talent found in our local community. However, the close resemblance of some members to Jake and Elwood Blues had at least one member of the audience wondering whether Chicago was now just up the road from Taree. Anyway, their diverse mix of outstanding musicianship and gags was thoroughly enjoyed and had the audience ready for more.

Bec and Dave delivered the desired treats ... and more again. They took to the stage like old friends returning home, and through a combination of music and stories, gave everyone a personal insight into their lives, thoughts, and experiences together on a long musical tour that began in Margaret River, WA, and luckily for us, brought them to Hollisdale Hall on what became an unforgettable night.

Regular Events December & January

First Friday

December First Friday will be held as usual on Friday, 7 December. There will be no First Friday in January. We will resume on Friday, 1 February.

Saturday Sing-Along

Our sing-along leader Elly Franchimont has hurt her voice, so the monthly sing-along has been suspended until her voice has healed. We wish Elly all the best and look forward to singing along with her in the new year.

Exercise Group

Exercise Group is suspended for December and January and will resume in February.

Yoga

The last Yoga class for 2012 will be on Saturday, 8 December. Classes will resume on Saturday, 19 January.

Grant Success

We're delighted to announce another successful grant application! PPA has been awarded a grant of $3850 from Council to sand and seal the old school room (existing kitchen) floor and install an island bench to provide storage and a more convenient and hygienic working surface for preparing food for functions. The island bench will be constructed and installed in such a way that it can be moved into the proposed new kitchen if we are able to bring that plan to fruition - more on that in the new year. We've submitted two other grant applications, so watch this space!

To give the hard working Pitchfork team and our many contributors a break over the Christmas/New Year period we have resolved to permanently cancel the January Issue and have 11 Issues of Pitchfork each year. The December Issue will include notices for Regular and Special events for both December and January.

Pappinbarra Outback Association Update

The paperwork for cancellation of the Association's registration is now with Fair Trading. All debts have been paid and those who had paid their annual fees have been reimbursed. At the final meeting of the Association a resolution was passed to divide any cash assets equally between the Pappinbarra Progress Association and the Pappinbarra Rural Fire Brigade. This will happen as soon as Fair Trading cancels the registration and approves of the proposed distribution of assets. The last meeting also decided that any equipment belonging to the Association should remain at the grounds for use by the community.

The new s355 committee has been approved by Council and will oversee facility bookings, collect fees and maintain the grounds – the s355 does not organise events. Council maintains the building, provides insurance and a working budget for s355 to maintain the grounds. Current members approved by council are Sue Frost, Rob Frost, Kelly Benson, Steve Ostler, Brenda Patrick and Emma Frost. If anyone else is interested in volunteering for the s355 committee please phone Sue Frost 6587 6129.

Council has recently replaced the electricity pole which supports one of the lights for the tennis court. I feel that this indicates that Council is keen for the grounds to continue to be open and used by the public. The holes which had appeared in the new surface of the tennis court have also been mended. Doug, from KCL Sports, did a great job in patching the court, which suffers from the lack of a good foundation.

The grounds and tennis court are available for private hire at $5 per hour for not-for-profit and $10 for commercial users. For bookings please phone Sue Frost 6587-6129.

Sue Frost, Acting s355 President

Special Invitation to POA Members to Join PPA

With the wrapping up of the POA we hope that the great community spirit that has sustained that Association for so many years will continue. That spirit saw the development of the facilities in Upper Pappinbarra for the whole community to enjoy. We hope it will now enrich the activities and spirit of the PPA representing all the residents of this wonderful Valley. To this end we extend a very warm invitation to POA members to join the PPA and help us continue the tradition of events across the Valley.

Spider Project - Opening Celebrations at the Glasshouse

Thanks to everyone who donated old toys or precious time to the Spider Project, a One Off Makery initiative that harnessed local skills to make a giant creature entirely out of salvaged materials. Our Orb-weaving Spider has taken gangly, furry shape, and in December we move into the Glasshouse Studio for the final touches. You can see the finished creature in its hand-spun web looming over the Glasshouse foyer as part of Summerfest 2013, from the 5th to the 22nd of January. All are welcome to join us at the Glasshouse on the morning of Saturday, 5 January for kids' activities and opening celebrations. Check with the Glasshouse for details.

Bird of the Month-Noisy Pitta

Common name: Noisy Pitta Scientific name: Pitta versicolor Other names: Anvil Bird or Jewel Thrush Size: 17 – 20 cm. Status: Secure

The Noisy Pitta is multicoloured having a buff coloured breast from chest to legs with a black blotch in the lower belly. The black head has a chestnut 'crown' circling it. The back is green with turquoise shoulder stripes and rump. The vent area is red in males or a deep pink in females. Juveniles have a greyish throat and a duller green back with no turquoise stripes.

Their voice is a loud and penetrating whistle given mainly during the breeding season. The advertising call resembles the sound "walk to work". Another call, a single "keeow" is heard during breading.

Usually occurring as solitary pairs, they inhabit rainforest and adjoining scrub along the East Coast of Australia from Cape York to about Newcastle, NSW. There is some altitudinal movement, the birds descending from higher areas during winter. Despite their colourful plumage they are difficult to observe, their presence being revealed by their repeated calls during the breeding season.

The Noisy Pitta forages for food on the forest floor and eats insects, worms and snails. The snails are broken open by repeatedly bashing them against a suitable rock or 'anvil', giving rise to its nickname, Anvil Bird.

Breading occurs between October and February when a domed nest is constructed of sticks and leaves, bound with thin grasses and lined with moss and lichen. The side entrance often has a pathway of sticks and debris. Three to four eggs are laid with incubation and rearing of the young shared by both adults. The nest is commonly built on or near the ground amongst buttressed roots on the down-hill side of a tree. For further information or questions related to this or other species contact can be made through this email address peter fac@yahoo.com.au (that's peter_fac). Season's greetings to all.

Plant of the Month - Ochna/Mickey Mouse Plant (Ochna serrulata) OCHNACEAE

Ochna is a woody shrub, usually to a maximum height of about 3 metres, but occasionally taller. It has rather smooth and very thin bark and a tenacious tap-root somewhat like an S-bend. It is at this bend (just below ground surface) that the stem can break if hand-pulling of the plant is attempted. Ochna was once a very fashionable garden plant suitable for hedging or as a stand-alone feature. Its showy yellow flowers hang pendulously and are followed by red sepals that reflex upward, beneath which are the 5 berry-like fruits that ripen from green to black. Although the plant has largely fallen out of vogue with gardeners, the birds still love it and it's by this means that the plant can rapidly spread over a wide range. The seeds that fall from the plant to the ground below also can germinate en mass into a carpet of seedlings, and riparian systems are particularly vulnerable areas of infection due to disturbance effects and long-range movement of seed in water. Dense infestations can form near-impenetrable thickets, and this - combined with the technical difficulty of control - make management costs per area very high. It is unlikely to ever be a weed of actively-managed pasture, but Ochna will quickly and readily invade unmanaged pastures, fencelines, riparian areas, hardwood forests and rainforests. If you have Ochna on your property, I strongly urge you to control and remove all plants and talk with your neighbours about new infestations which may already be establishing. For technical assistance on control, please contact the agencies below or feel free to call me on 6587-6022.

In the Vegie Patch this Month

Still time to do another planting of tomato, cucumber, zucchini, squash, beetroot & beans. Why not try growing your own peanuts? They are available in a 100 mm pot. The peanut is a annual belonging to the Pea family. The plant produces small clusters of yellow pea-like flowers, which grow on stems called pegs. These pegs grow down and push into the soil, and the nuts develop under ground from the pegs. Peanuts take about four months to harvest.

RFS News

The recent rain experienced across many parts of New South Wales has been welcome – but it's also brought an unwelcome threat for many people. The rain has lead to increased grass growth across many areas and as this grass begins to dry out, there's an increased risk of grass fires. Grass fires can be especially dangerous because they can start quickly and spread rapidly, catching people off-guard. They can produce large amounts of heat which can kill anyone caught out in the open.

Preparing for grass fires

There are things you can do now to protect yourself from grass fires. Having well maintained firebreaks mowed, ploughed, slashed or even grazed along fence lines and/or around your home, shed and storage areas can slow a fire's spread. Make sure you've got water for fire fighting, in case a fire is on your property. Have water tanks filled and connected to a pump - have a diesel pump as electric pumps won't work during a fire if the power goes out. Store things like fuel and firewood well away from your house. Check the access to your property - ensure cattle grids or bridges can hold the weight of a fire truck.

Fires Caused by Use of Machinery

Machinery such as tractors, slashers, harvesters, welders, chainsaws and grinders can start grass fires. To help reduce the risk of machinery fires starting or spreading:

- Check the machinery is free from any faults and mechanical defects which could start a fire;
- Ensure it is fitted with an approved spark arrestor;
- Carry a working water fire extinguisher or knapsack;
- Limit the use of equipment during hot, dry and windy conditions slashers shouldn't be used unless conditions are mild or are accompanied by an independent means of suppressing a fire; grinders shouldn't be used unless conditions are mild or the surrounding area is dampened down to prevent an ignition.

Bush Fire Survival Plan

All of us should have in place a "bush fire survival plan". Having one of these is the best way to help improve the safety of you and your family before or during a fire. Your plan can help stop you from making rushed and dangerous decisions at the last moment. Here is a link to help you create one for your family and assets: http://www.rfs.nsw.gov.au/file_system/attachments/Attachment_BushFireSurvivalPlan.pdf

Take care out there – we're all depending on you.

Days Gone By

"Growing up in the 1950's in sleepy Beechwood was, for Barry Miller, an idyllic childhood. Barry, now in his 60s, arrived in Beechwood at about the age of six when his father came to work "in the bush". Barry and his family lived on Beechwood Rd. "In those days", recalls Barry "there were only a handful of houses and families in Beechwood. A dirt road led into the village which consisted of a pub, a post office, a blacksmith, a bakehouse and Carney's butcher shop (currently a hair salon). There were four service stations, one at the still-existing Beechwood corner shop, one at the blacksmith's, one outside the post office and one at the Catholic Church. The bakehouse was owned by a lovely lady called Moni Carroll who lived on the premises". Barry remembers going to buy "big, tank loaves of bread" at fivepence each and says that all the local kids loved the bakehouse because Moni would allow them to stay in there on freezing cold days.

Moni employed a baker who always had a "big cigarette hanging off his lip" with the ash often finding its way into the loaves. Beechwood in the 1950s consisted mainly of dairy farms. Twice daily a milk lorry rattled along the dirt road collecting the cans of milk for pasteurisation at the Co-op. There was also Beechwood Mill where the local kids were allowed to use the facilities to have a hot shower once the workers had all left for the day. A typical Beechwood house in the early 1950s had only cold water and a woodfire stove for cooking. 'Spot' Lullham who built the house at 691 Beechwood Road had the only phone in the village which the villagers borrowed if they needed to make a call. The telephone exchange was situated at Pembroke, with a train station, mail exchange and large post office further up the line at Telegraph Point.
